TWENTY-NINTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE TRUSTEES OF THE TAFT PUBLIC LIBRARY.

The Trustees of the Taft Public Library herewith submit the twenty-ninth annual report.

The report of the librarian is most encouraging, although it shows a decrease in the circulation, (partly due to the removal of several patrons from town). The per centage of science circulated, shows a marked increase; the per centage of fiction was 71 as against 73 of last year.

In response to the demand for magazines, "The Century" has been added to the library's subscription list. Through the generosity of subscribers, 9 current periodicals were contributed. The magazines are circulated under the regulations which govern the books.

During the year there has been one art exhibit, the subject, Rome.

One copy of Mendon Annals has been sold. One book was destroyed from fear of infection. Fourteen books were lost on the way to the bindery. The loss was shared by the binder.

About four hundred books have been rebound.

The immediate great needs of the library are: The replacing of many of the standard works; an Index which will render the magazines available as reference books; the completion of the files of "The Century" and of "Harper's Magazine" and increased shelf room.

The trustees, in behalf of the citizens, wish to express gratitude for all gifts to the library during the past year. We also wish to express to the librarian our appreciation of the efficient service to which the year's success is so largely due. We recommend the same appropriation as last year.

Respectfully submitted,

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT.

TO THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE OF MENDON:

I herewith submit the sixteenth annual report of the superintendent of schools.

The general condition of your schools seems to me to be especially satisfactory. Without a single exception the teachers are devoted to their work and are well adapted to the positions which they occupy. If it were wise to refer to particular schools and teachers, many instances of marked improvement might be cited. On the whole the spirit of the pupils was excellent a year ago, but in some few cases it is even better now. The supply of books and maps has been considerably increased. Of course they have cost money, but they were badly needed. It is poor economy to employ a workman and not supply him with tools with which to work. At the present writing, all the conditions are favorable to splendid work and fine progress.

In last year's report I suggested the advisability of renting a small piece of land to be cultivated in connection with an elementary course in agriculture in the high school. Mr. Taylor had this in mind before he left. State Agent McDonald has urged us to try the experiment. Goff & Mayne's "First Principles of Agriculture" is already used as a text, and the next logical step would be a concrete application of some of the facts and principles learned therein. Probably many of the pupils feel that they have farming enough at home, and this may be true, but I have in mind something more than farming. I am seeking some means of showing the relation of such high school subjects as physics, chemistry, and mechanics to agriculture. Too much of education is in the air. We need to put a foundation under it. We need to connect it with life. Learning should make labor more intelligent, more enjoyable, and more profitable.

Certain phases of agriculture are sure to make marvelous progress in New England during the next few years. Dr. Wiley, chief of the national bureau of chemistry, says, "Buy New England farms. They offer a great opportunity. The tide of moving farmers is eastward. Thousands are coming out of the West to repopulate the deserted acres of the East, and the day is not far distant when with the new knowledge of farming applied to them, these deserted farms will yield abundantly and will vie with the world in the quality of their grain." So large a commercial and manufacturing population will always furnish the best of markets for dairy products, vegetables, fruits, poultry, and eggs.

It is not my purpose to maintain that every high school graduate should follow agriculture as a life work, though I do think it is an eminently worthy pursuit and one demanding high intelligence. My motive for urging the cultivation of a small plot of ground for demonstration purposes rests in the conviction that the value of any school subject is greatly increased by connecting it with the interests, realities, and activities of real life. Most school work is too bookish. Relatively too much time is given to the acquisition of facts and principles and not enough to the use and application of them. Only by the use of knowledge is real intellectual power developed.

There were many good things in the old education which should be preserved, and chief among them was self-reliance. Parents sometimes complain that the teacher is not willing to help the children. Such complaints are usually due to a misunderstanding as to what real assistance is. Whatever relieves the child from doing all he can to help himself will prove ultimately to be neither kind nor helpful. What children need is a clear, adequate presentation of each new subject to the entire class. This is teaching—real instruction. Hearing a lesson is not teaching but testing, and drill is something quite different from either. During a teaching period every pupil in the class should give, not merely passive, but active, concentrated attention. If some point has not been made quite clear, any member of the class should feel at liberty to ask questions about it, but the entire class should receive the benefit of both the questions and the answers. These conditions being met, there will be very little necessity of "showing" individual pupils. Furthermore, there will be little or no occasion for communication between pupils. The pupil who falls into the habit of calling upon the teacher or a classmate for help every time a little difficulty arises soon breaks down his courage and self-reliance, loses his perseverance and all the other instincts of a true student.

It is pleasant to hear such good reports of the Mendon students in college. Those who go to college from a small high school must enter on examination. It is not reasonable to suppose they have had quite the same preparation they would have received in a city high school with its fine laboratories and large corps of teachers. Consequently it is a credit to the town, the high school, and the students that they are getting along so satisfactorily.

The plan of the present senior class to go to Washington during the spring vacation may seem like quite an undertaking. It is certainly worth while if it is financially possible. Hundreds of high school classes take this trip, and they probably learn more of history, civics, science, art, and architecture than they could possibly learn in any other way for the same expense. They receive such vivid impressions of size, beauty, grandeur, enterprise, and achievement as to produce in the normal youth a beneficial blending of humility and aspiration. They ought to come back better patriots and better citizens.

I have found the work in your town extremely pleasant during the past year, and I wish hereby to express due appreciation.

Respectfully submitted,

F. G. ATWELL,

Superintendent of Schools.
